

Amazon Appstore Offers 30 Paid Apps for Free

Andrew Berg

Amazon Friday announced that it is giving away for free 31 of its most popular paid apps.

Amazon is offering up the apps as part of the company's Free App of the Day. The apps include titles such as Travel Interpreter ($9.99) and PUZZINGO Puzzles ($14.99). Amazon said the apps have a combined value in excess of $100.

The apps will be available for free download on Friday, June 27th and Saturday, June 28th.

Amazon has been promoting its app store lately as the company last week unveiled its new Fire Phone.

Last week, Amazon that the Amazon Appstore, which is a curated grouping of apps from Google Play that run on the company's Android-based Fire OS, has reached 240,000. While that's a far cry from Apple's App Store's 1.2 million apps, Amazon does offer many of the major apps available across platforms.
